The Arctic Calamity.

Miraculous Escape. The narrative below will be read with thrilling intelegraphic head yesterday.

CAPT. LUCE'S STATEMENT. QUEBEC, Oct. 14th. E. K. Collins, Dear Sir:—It becomes my painful duty to inform you of the total loss of the steamer

I then gave orders to the second officer to let go and row after the ship, keeping up or near the stern, to be ready to take on women and children, as soon as the fires were out and engines stopped. My attention was then drawn to and were soon out of sight. I soon found myself on the surface, after a brief struggling with my own helpless child in my arms, when I again found myself impelled downward to a great depth, and before I reached the surface a second time had nearly perished and lost the hold of my child.—As I struggled to the surface of the water a most awful and heart-rending scene presented itself to my view—over two hundred men, women and children struggling to gether, amidst pieces of wreck of every kind, calling on each other for help, and imploring God to assist them. Such an appalling scene may God preserve me from witnessing again. I was in the act of trying to save my child, when a portion of a paddle box came rushing up edgewise, just grazing my head and falling with its whole weight upon my darling child; another moment and I beheld him lying lifeless in the water. I succeeded in getting on the top of the paddle box, in company with elev-

Feeling myself exhausted, I now sat down for the first time, about 8 o'clock in the evening, on a trunk which providentially had been found on the wreck. In this way I slept a little throughout the night, and became somewhat refreshed. About an hour before day-light,—now, Friday, the 29th,—we saw a vessel's lights near to us. We all three of us exerted ourselves to the utmost of our strength in hailing until we became quite exhausted. In about a quarter of an hour, the light disappeared to the East of us. Soon after day-light a bark hove in sight to the Northwest, the fog having lighted a little, steering apparently for us, but in a short time she appeared to have changed her course, and again we were doomed to disappointment. Yet I felt hopes that CHILDREN'S SHOES.

The Recent Election. Our friend of the Portsmouth, Va., Globe is pretty well acquainted with matters in this section, but evidently not "posted" in regard to recent movements in this County, and therefore misconceives our position in the late election, and also the causes for our regretting the result. That regret is not because of any objections to Mr. McMillan, as a man or a Democrat-not because Dr. Walker was defeated-none of these things; but because of the mode and manner by which these things were effected-of the secrecy characteristic of anything else than Democratic principle and usage-of the spirit of vengeance against individual members of the party which brought men who claim to be Democrats into a strange alliance with those whose most respectful phrase for Democrats has been "Loco Focos," " Lococrats," or any other term expressive of contumely and reproach-of the determination, in certain quarters, to meet with their fellow Democrats on no grounds whatever, to neither approve of any suggestion made nor make any suggestion openly themselves. These are the things we regret; and that we should regret the success of these things is perfectly natural and right. There was no nomination made, and consequently no regular Democratic candidate in the field; and, certainly, nobody would object to Mr. McMillan's being run openly and fairly; we, certainly, should not have said a word one way or the other, but we did object to any man's being run secretly, electioneered for secretly, and only brought out openly on the day of the election, by a hand-bill, issued not simply from the Commercial office, but by the editor of the Commercial, as avowed in vesterday's issue of that paper. An excellent and consistent leader of the Democrats of New Hanover county is Mr. Loring, "editor and proprietor" of the Commercial. Let this fact be pondered upon and some idea may thus be formed of others.

The Agricultural Society.

Pursuant to notice, a meeting for the organization of an Agricultural Society, for this county, was held last night at the Court House. Considering the shortness of the notice, which was only issued yesterday, the meeting was very well attended, and seemed to success and permanency. A number of the citizens the Chair, and Edward Savage appointed Secretary. of Brunswick engaged in agriculture, being desirous of uniting with their brethren of New Hanover, and Wilmington being regarded as the most accessible point for a large portion of that county, as well as this, the "New Hanover and Brunswick Agricultural Society" was, on motion, adopted as the name of the association. A President, Vice-President, Seced to draw up a Constitution and By-Laws for the Government of the Society, to be submitted for the action of a subsequent meeting.

The proceedings of the meeting were of a strictly business character, and no attempt was made at oratory or display. During the absence of a committee, appointed to nominate officers for the Society, J. G. McRee, Esq., being called upon, responded in some exceedingly well-timed and sensible remarks, exhibiting, in a practical light, the advantages to be derived from the association, and the mutual interchange of facts and ideas.

We trust and believe that this is the commence ment of a brighter day for the agriculture of this portion of the lower Cape Fear; and that it will be found that that interest which underlies all others, is not less capable of permanent organization and effort for its own advancement, than that engaged in commerce, mining or manufactures.

We believe we forgot to mention that a resolution was passed authorising the President of the meeting, John A. Taylor, Esq., to appoint, at his leisure, a committee, consisting of one from each precinct in the county, and three from the town of Wilmington, to obtain the names of members for the society.

The proceedings of the meeting were handed in too late for to day's paper-they will appear in our next. Daily Journal 25th inst.

FROM THE SEAT OF WAR .- No official despatches have been published relative to the battle of Alma. The English lost 2000 men in the engagement in cilled and wounded, and the French 1400. The allies had changed their plan of operations and were to attack Sabastopol from the south, where it was found to be weaker. The base of the operations is Balaklava, where the cavalry and the seige artillery have landed.

After the battle of Alma the Russians burnt all the villages which they passed through in their retreat. In their flight they left 6,000 wounded behind them. One thousand Russians, who were escorting a con-

The Emperor's splendid stud of horses excited the admiration of the Prince's suite, and is not unworthy of notice in connection with the Emperor's well directed efforts to improve the breed of horses in France. The cavalry horses of the French army are mostly bred in Normandy, except the horses of the light cavalry, which come from Tarbes, near the Pyrenees, and which have a mixture of Arab blood. many excellent qualities of endurance, the horses of the French cavalry are capable of great improvement in point of blood and bone, and Nopoleon's attention is unceasingly directed to this object. Large purchases of English horses are frequently made by his agents, and, seeing the prices which are given for good steeds, and the rivalry which exists between the buyers for the French and German Governments to secure the best animals, some astonishment is expressed that English farmers do not more generally avail themselves of the facilities they possess for rearing first rate horses for so certain and so good a market. Besides the haras of the Emperor, he has a stud and breeding establishment at St. Cloud, at which colts of extraordinary value are reared from a

The prosecuting attorney was of course entirely ignorant of the facts and of the evidence which might be adduced. He could not spend weeks toiling on horseback or on foot, amidst the spurs of the mountains, through a sparsely-settled country, to hunt up witnesses, and ascertain what knowledge they had of the circumstances connected with the criminal transactions.

"In every district there were men of sound judgment and high character, to whom controversies were constantly referred, and whose decisions were regarded as final. Prominent among these was a man named Lynch, whose awards exhibited so much justice, judgment and impartiality, that he was known throughout the country as Judge Lynch. In the course of time criminals were brought before him. and he awarded such punishment as he thought was just and proper. He considered every case calmly and dispassionately, and when he entertained doubts as to the course to be pursued, he would consult with calm and dispassionate men before he pronounced that sentence from which there was no appeal.-There were other persons in different districts who acted as arbitrators, and who awarded punishments: but Judge Lynch was the most conspicuous, and consequently the system took his name, and was called Lynch law. This was a compliment to his integrity and high character, but of late years it has been regarded as a reproach, because violent and unprincipled men, such men as he was wont to punish, have set the laws at defiance, and whilst inflamed by passion or maddened by a thirst for revenge, have usurped the prerogatives of the courts of justice."

We see the subject of abolishing this law is being discussed, and many seem favorably inclined towards it. But we are of a different opinion; although turned their backs upon those whom it was their duty look at it, in one sense, it appears to be a curtailict, they are both limited under the same reason .nlike anything else, money is not always to be gotten of anybody in the vicinity, therefore, if the money holder was not restrained, he could be a powerful lever over the property of those by whom he is surrounded. It is one of those causes where the law, seeing the majority of its subjects liable to oppresion by the few who happen to possess, interfere and egree qualifying the use of the owner. But it is the whole as a whole and not as individuals. There s hardly a law upon our statute book but operates harshly upon some few. But the idea that the doing away of this law, will work good to the many, let s inquire into it. If we were sure that there would night do, but it would even then be better as it is, nothing. "A WORD TOUCHING THE SPANISH -There is report in circulation that the government of the United States have arranged with the Spanish government a treaty comprehending the sale of the island of Cuba by the latter to the former. Without enteropper, in sheet, proper, and sheet, proper, in sheet, proper, proper, in sheet, proper, pr which so momentous and important a territorial transfer suggests, we allude to the rumor, which is growing to a character that calls for belief, for the purpose of drawing the attention of the British public, who have so long been the creditors of Spain, to the n seed, per bushel, 6 cents.

The confidence with which the Times refers to the that the negotiations in regard to the acquisition of Cuba are not in as hopeless a condition as the enemies of Mr. Soule have industriously affirmed.— have so complimentarily conferred upon me, and endeavor Whilst we are satisfied that the rumor is not true to to serve you faithfully. the extent indicated in the Times, we are confident that there is no reason to despair of Mr. Soule's ultimate success. In connexion with this subject we have a private letter from a reliable friend in Paris, from which we take the liberty of using the follow-

Paris, Oct. 2, 1854. The reports are current this morning of the capituation of Sebastopol. I have but little doubt that the steamer which conveys this will carry over a among us our late confrier, Dr. Joseph Swift Miller: confirmation of them. The property taken by the allies, it is supposed, is worth $50,000,000! Czar will now have to abdicate, or reign in disgrace. Thus vanishes from the earth the repeated Colossus idence, the removal of one, whose life exhibited exemplary of autocracy—the prime mover and contriver of the devotedness to his profession and an ardent zeal to elevate its reaction which nearly prostrated the liberal party of character and usefulness. Europe in 1849. The republican world can now breathe more freely. "Whom the gods would destroy they first made mad," and there never was so striking an exemplification of the truth of the adage

Mr. Soule is here, and has never been in better The entente cordiale will not now be of long duration. The division of honors and of property will engender heart-burnings which may eventuate in hostile feelings. I think that neither power, even as matters now stand, would dream of a physical resistence to our acquisition of Cuba by purchase .-The people of both countries are decidedly with us, as they were against the Czar. Spain must choose between the purse and the sword. If she rejects the former, she must be distinctly informed that the safety of the Union will compel us to employ the latter. The public mind should be familiarized to the adage upon which we shall have to act-that "self-preservation is nature's first law." We can well afford to inscribe it on our flag.

It could have safely accommodated many more but revolvers were ly accommodated many more, but revolvers were drawn by those on board, against those who were shricking and struggling to go on board. In that fearful struggle were many helpless women and children, but their pitiful appeals for life were unheeded by the robust onwards who had stolen the boats, and to preserve-or at least to endeavor to preserve one of monied men's rights; and it is very general-y asked, why should a man be compelled to hire Hardy, rough handed, broad-shouldered, strong framis money at a certain price, when another can hazards of which one would naturally think deadens hazards of which one would naturally think deadens the pleases for his house, or any charge just what he pleases for his house, or any in some degree everything like personal fear—men other species of property? But we look upon this like these treacherously deserting feeble and delicate like these treacherously deserting feeble and delicate as in the case of a miller, who is not allowed to like these treacherously deserting feeble and delicate avail himself of the necessity of his neighbors; in children, that should have touched hearts of adamant. It is enough to make us all ashamed of humanity, and envy the better nature of the beasts of the field .-Not one woman saved. Not one child !- at least we have at the moment we write this, no assurance of

The circumstances connected with the loss of the British steamer Birkenhead, on the coast of Africa, places a restriction upon that power, indeed, in some not many months since, are still fresh in the memories of all. The steamer struck on a hidden rock, stove a plank at the bows, and went to the bottom, we believe, in half an hour's time. There was a for the benefit and safety of the greater number, we believe, in half an hour's time. There was a which is a principal generally acted upon, that all regiment of troops on hoard. As soon as the plarm law and regulation are made with a view to benefit regiment of troops on board. As soon as the alarm was given and it became apparent that the ship's fate was sealed, the roll of the drum called the soldiers to arms on the upper deck. That call was proptly obeyed, though every gallant heart there knew that it was his death summons. There they stood as always be a crowd of rival money lenders, then it if in battle array—a motionless mass of brave men men who were men indeed. The ship every moment or now they can rival each other by taking less or was going down and down—but there were no traitors, no deserters, no cravens there. The women and children were got into the boats, and were all, or ing, not to loan at ten or twelve, or higher, as nearly all, saved; there were no boats for the troops hey saw fit, particularly when there was no bank —but there was no panic, no blanched, pale quivernear at hand, which certainly would work to the prejudice of poor men. And how often is it went that heroic band, shoulder to shoulder, firing a ing lips among them. Down went the ship, and down he case that a man must have money, and how easy would be for the money sharper to find it out—and like these never perish; their bodies may be given to ow likely that they would use the knowledge to their the fishes of the sea, but their memories are, as they

of the enterprising, honest, but poor man. How improbable it would be that anybody would be willing to invest his money in Bank stock, whose rate of interest is limited, when at any moment he might be able to loan it out at a rate greatly exceeding what he could possibly expect from the Bank. We look upon this law as one of the best upon our statute book and hone it may long remain there.—Newbern Jour.

Objections Answered.

It is well-known that the ELIXIR VITÆ is an infallible medicine, always restoring to health all who use it from one to four weeks, according to the nature and extent of their disease; but some say it is the dearest medicine in the world. Indeed, then health to you is not a priceless blessing. Many persons after spending all their living upon Physicians, and for months and years drugged their systems with abominable Patent Medicines, have been restored to perfect health by its use in from one to four weeks. As to the prescribed doses, if they be too large for a delicate stomach, reduce them to any size, it will only take a proportionably longer time to

We presume that it is conceded that this county should be present in the persons of her strongest and ablest citizens-those most fully conversant with such matters, as also, to borrow a phrase from Charles Sumner, men of "back-bone"who can do, as well as talk. Of the importance of this matter, we presume there can be no doubt and little difference of opinion, nor that this place has a deep stake in the direction to be given to the future improvements of the State, which the proposed convention will probably have considerable influence in shaping.

The absence of many of our most active business men has very properly deferred any action until their had on board 1,460 sacks of salt. return, or until, at least, as late a day as possible before the meeting of the Convention, but we would suggest that a meeting for the appointment of delegates cannot be postponed beyond the coming week, and deposited them there for safe keeping. Besides, the interests of the town and County are mutual, and it is proper that their people should move

We cannot see that participation in the deliberations of the Salisbury Convention can, in any way, affect our relations with the people of Charlotte, arising out of the July Convention at that place; and, at any rate, the people of most of the counties represented at Charlotte will also be represented at Salisbury, including those of Mecklenburg herself.

The Faris correspondent of the Independence Belge, published at Brussels, mentions a rumor of a joint Washington, by the French and English governments, requiring explanations in regard to the engagement said to have been entered into between the United States and Russia, especially with reference to the acquisition, by the United States, of the Russian possessions on the Pacific. The Paris Presse also gives that they can demand, and that the United States will refuse, and that will be about the whole of it.

F. GEORGE,

The State Fair. At the time of writing this (Monday) the prospect is that the State Fair will be fully equal, in every respect, to the expectations of the most sanguine.

Several lots of fine cattle have arrived. Pr. W. R. Holt, of Davidson, has twenty-one of his best Devons; Mr. Wm. Russell, of Caswell, twenty-three altogether, some Devons and Durhams, but mostly one Durham, one Ayshire, and the balance Devon; Mr. Turner Battle, of Edgecombe, exhibits three Devons; and W. T. Dortch, Esq., of Wayne, a fine looking and valuable cow and calf of the Durham many more expected; and some Poland geese, large and fine looking, by Jas. A. Bullock, of Granville.

Thrashers, wheat-fans, ploughs, and machinery of all kinds are upon the grounds, and large addition in this department expected. Mr. Russell, of Caswell, has placed in Farmer's Hall a firkin of Durham butter, a Durham cheese, and a barrel of flour. We observed also some skirting leather, by Messrs. Gunn and Bowe, of Caswell. Floral Hall, however, will be the centre of attraction. We saw there a beautifully embroidered handkerchief and cape, by Mrs. Sallie T. Eaton, of Granville; a very handsomely embroidered sack and vest, of the hair of the Cooke family," most curiously and embroidered dresses, by Miss Freeman, of this city. But it is useless to attempt now to go into details .and classified by the committees, we will give them more at length.

The Committees have been indefatigable in discharge of their duties. Every arrangement for convenience & comfort has been made on the grounds, Raleigh Standard.

Florida Election.

JACKSONVILLE, (Fa.,) Oct. 9.—By returns of the election held in this State on the 2d inst., for a member of Congress, State register, and State legislature, received, the re-election of the Hon, A. E. Maxwell is conceded, by a majority of from 800 to 1,000 votes. Hon. David S. Walker (whig) is re-elected State register of lands, without opposition. The legislature will be largely democratic in both branches, which secures the election of a United States senator, for six years from the 4th March next, vice Hon. Jackson Morton, (whig.)

The result is a perfect Waterloo defeat to the whigs, and a triumphant vindication by the people of Florida of the course of Mr. Maxwell in Con-the 40th year of his age.

"How is the strong staff and the beautiful rod broken."
With sorrowing soul and reluctant hand, do we perform "for him whose death is her the "last sad rite of tenderness," for him whose death is her announced. We have gathered round his bier to look our last upon his lifeless form, and now that he is surrendered to the repose of the tomb, we but yield to the pious promptings of duty and affection, in the utterance of a few farewell words to his memory.

When the aged pilgrim has finished his course, we reverently bear him to his grave, and deem it but the fulfilled behest of nature that he thus should die. But when he who has scarce commenced his career of manly life, falls before the destroyer, with what startling emphasis are we taught the admonitory truth that vain are the hopes of man and the destroyer, with what startling emphasis are we taught the admonitory truth, that vain are the hopes of man and inscrutable indeed the ways of God. In the meridian of his day, in the pride of life, and while flushed with anticipations of a joyous future, the fatal arrow has been sped to the heart of the loved and the lost whose death we deplore. It is true his fate was foreshown with painful presage, but when we remembered the face and form, the one so radiant with health, and the other so marked with the blended grace and dignity of manhood, upon which we had so often and so recently gazed, the mind could scarce take in the thought, that the dark curtain of death, would so soon hide such a vision from our eyes. from our eyes.

Few men have lived, in the portraiture of whose characteristics.

ter, the better lineaments of our nature could be more clearly discerned, than in that of our lamented friend. Prepared for his profession by the enjoyment of the best Academic helps at home and abroad, he came to its practice with far more than ordinary equipment for its arduous duties, and possessed of a devotion to it, which made its study alike his habit and delight, he wen for himself a distinction which not only secured the confidence of all who sought his skill, but also gave him a position, which his professional compeers might well desire to attain.

Distinguished as a physician, he was also endowed with qualities which gave to his character all the dignity of a man. Frank, generous, truthful and eminently no stain of reproach ever tarnished the bright mirror of his life. But it was in the daily beauty of that life, as a husband, a brother, and a friend, that the nobleness of his rature and the more winning graces of his character, were most distinct-

Little did the world at large know of the tenderness, affectionateness, and sympathising susceptibilities, "which leaped like angels from his heart," for his companionships were never with the multitude. By the friends, however, who came within the circle of his affections, his virtues will ever be remembered, and sacredly enshrined in the sanctuary of their souls. In all the progress of his life, he was the object of their love; and when he came to die, they rejoiced to know that he sought and found the solace of that religion, which imparted a bright-or lustre to his character, and even amid the agonies of earth gave him a sweet foretaste of Heaven. With the unreserved profession of the Christian's faith, he gave to all around him the cheering assurance that he enjoyed the Christian's hope-"that hope which travels through, nor quits us when we die." Thus he lived, and thus he died. Long may the example of his life and death be remembered; and may He who has promised to be "a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless," mercifully sustain those who, bound to him by the nearer relations of life, are now weeping and bleeding under nearer relations of life, are now weeping and orecang that this stroke of divine power. His former temple is in ruins—the blight and decay of death rest upon all that was mortal of him now, but his spirit, seeking its higher destiny, has gone, robed in righteouness, from this discordant world, to live in unrobed in righteouness, from this discordant world, to live dying glory, amid the hallowed harmonies of Heaven. using giory, amid the hallowed harmonies of Heaven.—Com.
